AFC East Division Preview

Buffalo Bills

The injury bug bit the Bills hard last season but a mid-season change in offensive coordinators sparked increased production out of the offense and Buffalo still managed 11 wins. Josh Allen is one of the best in the business and despite the offseason trade of Stefon Diggs, we believe he can make it work with a less than stellar wide receiving corps.

James Cook is a versatile back and another target for Allen while the duo of Dalton Kincaid and Dawson Knox are among the best tight-end tandems in the game. Josh Allen also has major protection in bookend tackles Dion Dawkins and Spencer Brown while the interior is a bit suspect.

Best Bets: Super Bowl winner +1400
& Over 10 ½ (+120) regular season wins

New York Jets

Aaron Rodgers will turn 41 next season and played only four snaps before tearing his Achilles last season. But that doesn't seem to deter the public from believing he will be the same All-Pro caliber quarterback he was in Green Bay for all those years.

The Jets' defense is built for success with pass-rushing prowess in the trenches and a sticky secondary in the backfield, chief among them is Sauce Gardner. But if Rodgers' 40-something body betrays him and he's either injured or ineffective, it's all over.

Best Bets: Under 9 ½ regular season wins (+110)

Miami Dolphins

If the Fish can stay healthy it will be quite a season. Quarterback Tua Tagovailoa had an outstanding 2023 as did Tyreek Hill. Both will be back in 2024, as will one of the best No. 2 wideouts in the league, Jaylen Waddle. Odell Beckham Jr. was added as a third option which makes this offense among the most explosive in the NFL.

Considering the weapons above complemented by two outstanding running backs in Raheem Mostert and De'Von Achane, this could easily be a Super Bowl-winning edition of the Miami Dolphins. The reason we are not completely sold is because Tua and his interior linemen tend to get injured but if they stay healthy, look out!

Best Bet: Over 9 ½ regular season wins (-110)

New England Patriots

The Evil Genius, Bill Belichick, has been ousted in New England after two decades and the Jerod Mayo era has begun. How good the former Patriots' defensive captain will be at calling the shots remains to be seen but he's got a very good bridge at quarterback in Jacoby Brissett before the No. 3 overall pick, Drake Maye, takes over at some point – hopefully later than sooner.

The stability Jacoby Brissett will bring versus the erratic tandem of Mac Jones and Bailey Zappe has got to be worth at least a few wins. But the Patriots' receivers consist of Kendrick Bourne coming off an ACL tear augmented by second-year man Pop Douglas and second-round selection Ja'Lynn Polk give us cause for pause.

Best Bet: Over 4 ½ regular season wins (-150)

AFC West Division Preview

Kansas City Chiefs

The Chiefs' offense experienced a noticeable decline last year, averaging a mere 21.8 points per game (15th), a staggering drop from its 29.2 PPG in 2022. Kansas City didn't do much to surround Patrick Mahomes with enough capable weapons but the defense mitigated that offensive decline, allowing only 17.3 points per game (2nd) in the regular season and surrendered even less, 15.8 PPG, in the playoffs.

This season the Chiefs signed Marquise "Hollywood" Brown whose production declined in his two years in Arizona while also drafting Xavier Worthy out of Texas in the first round.

Best Bet: Under 11 ½ (-105) Regular Season Wins & Division Winner -250

Los Angeles Chargers

The Chargers were decimated by injuries and none were more noticeable than those sustained by several of their primary weapons in the forms of Austin Ekeler, Keenan Allen, and Mike Williams.

That triumvirate departed in the offseason but the Chargers tried to restock by bringing in the Ravens' running back duo of Gus Edwards and J.K. Dobbins while drafting a beast on the offensive line in Notre Dame's Joe Alt with the No. 5 overall selection. They then chose Georgia wideout Ladd McConkey early in the second round.

Best Bets: Over 8 ½ (-150) Regular Season Wins

Denver Broncos

Russell Wilson's tenure in Mile High is over and the Broncos have handed the reigns, at least temporarily, to lightly tested veteran Jarrett Stidham. Denver drafted Oregon's Bo Nix with the 12th overall selection and added former Jets' golden boy, Zach Wilson to the QB room.

Jerry Jeudy was traded in the offseason which is no big loss as the former first-rounder in 2020 had failed to live up to expectations. However, the biggest blow could come on the defensive side of the ball as three solid starters, safeties Justin Simmons and Kareem Jackson, along with linebacker Josey Jewell have all departed.

Best Bet: Under 5 ½ (U-120) Regular Season Wins

Las Vegas Raiders

Antonio Pierce will get a full season to implement his regime after taking over for the terminated Josh McDaniels last year. The issue is that the Raiders will go to battle with a second-year passer in Aidan O'Connell and America's favorite backup, Gardner Minshew. Which one gets the starting job is up for debate.

The Raiders picked the best player available at No. 13 when they chose Georgia tight end Brock Bowers, who will be added to an offense that boasts Davante Adams and Jakobi Myers. They also have an excellent blindside blocker, Kolton Miller, who will once again anchor the line along with second-rounder Jackson Powers-Johnson out of Oregon.

Best Bet: Over 6 ½ (-135) Regular Season Wins

AFC South Division Preview

Jacksonville Jaguars

Trevor Lawrence experienced a series of injuries last season but was not the same sharp, lethal passer he was in 2022. Lawrence had 21 touchdowns with 14 interceptions and was sacked 35 times. This year he will be without his top target, Calvin Ridley, who signed with Tennessee in the offseason, and will instead look to former Buffalo receiver, Gabe Davis, as a first option.

The defense will get a boost this season from former 49er edge rusher Arik Armstead but the unit is still lacking. Darnell Savage was signed to be a nickel corner but the secondary is middling at best.

Best Bet: Under 8 ½ (-105) Regular Season Wins

Tennessee Titans

Former Patriots linebacker-turned-head coach, Mike Vrabel, was pink-slipped after a 6-11 campaign despite a litany of injuries. But now the Brian Callahan era begins and he will try to bring some of that Cincinnati magic to Nashville after toiling as the Bengals OC for the last five years.

Calvin Ridley and Tyler Boyd should prove to be shiny new toys for second-year quarterback Will Levis while Tony Pollard will take over the rushing duties from the departed Derrick Henry. Factor in an excellent choice with Alabama tackle JC Latham as the seventh overall pick to add much-needed protection for Levis.

Best Bets: Over 6 ½ Regular Season Wins (+105)

Indianapolis Colts

Anthony Richardson looked great until he got injured in the fourth game of his NFL career. It's a dangerous recipe for a quarterback's longevity and he will have to focus more on his aerial attack this season. If Richardson does go down, the Colts signed Joe Flacco to take the reins of the offense in his absence.

Jonathan Taylor will be healthy which is a tremendous boost to the offense. Taylor allowed a contract dispute to sideline him for the first four games of last season and ultimately ended with a torn ligament in his thumb. The offensive line is among the best in the league.

Best Bet: Over 8½ (-125) Regular Season Wins
& Division Winner (+325)

Houston Texans

Texans defied the odds and exceeded all expectations last season by taking a quantum leap from a cellar-dwelling 3-13-1 squad to a 10-7 playoff edition. The NFL Offensive and Defensive Rookies of the Year, C.J. Stroud and Will Anderson are back and this time they will have a full year of experience.

Stroud will have a stellar receiving corps now that Stefon Diggs has been added to what was already a lethal young duo consisting of Nico Collins and Tank Dell. Add in veteran running back, Joe Mixon, and now the Texans are cookin' with gas.

Best Bet: Over 9½ (-155) Regular Season Wins

AFC North Division Preview

Cincinnati Bengals

Joe Burrow missed the last third of the season due to injury and the Bengals were on the outside looking in when the playoffs commenced. Burrow started the season with a calf injury but slowly got better until he tore a ligament in his throwing wrist, prematurely ending his 2023 campaign.

Joe Mixon is the only notable absence from this year's team but he was in mild decline last year which means there will be little if any drop-off with Chase Brown and Zack Moss running the rock. The Cats also added Georgia's 6'7" Amarius Mims while they also have Ja'Marr Chase and Tee Higgins on the wings.

Best Bets: Over 10 ½ (-140)
& Division Winner +160

Baltimore Ravens

The Ravens have Lamar Jackson but management did little to improve his receiving corps. Odell Beckham Jr added a modicum of talent to last year's unit but he has departed and Baltimore will stay pat with Zay Flowers, Rashod Bateman, and Nelson Agholor. Flowers is a solid No. 2 receiver playing No. 1, others are spare parts.

But that lack of weaponry will not affect Jackson as much as it would other quarterbacks due to his mobility and his propensity to run the ball early and often. Note that Derrick Henry will improve the rushing attack after the Ravens saw Gus Edwards and J.K. Dobbins leave and join the Chargers.

Best Bets: Over 10 ½ (-135) Regular Season Wins

Cleveland Browns

Joe Flacco invigorated the Browns offense after taking over for an injured Deshaun Watson last season. But Flacco signed with Indianapolis and Watson is back in the ring to take another swing after a series of injuries that have prevented him from consistently playing and playing consistently.

Another major question mark is Nick Chubb, one of the best rushers in the game when healthy but a devastating knee injury sidelined the All-Pro back for most of last year and he will likely be out to begin this season.

The cornerstone of this franchise is Myles Garrett, a monster on the line for one of the best defenses in the NFL.

Best Bet: Under 8 ½ (+110) Regular Season Wins

Pittsburgh Steelers

Kenny Pickett is out and Russell Wilson is in as Pittsburgh's man under center. Should Wilson struggle, the Steelers added Justin Fields as an insurance policy. Pittsburgh also bolstered its offensive line by using its first two draft picks on Washington tackle Troy Fautanu at No. 20 followed by West Virginia center Zach Frazier, chosen in the second round.

T.J. Watt remains the god of thunder on Pittsburgh's defense and is coming off a phenomenal 19-sack season. The Steelers also signed Patrick Queen to join what is perhaps the best linebacking corps in the league.

Best Bet: Over 8½ (+125) Regular Season Wins

NFC

NFC East Division Preview

Philadelphia Eagles

If you thought the Eagles were going to ignore the glaring weakness in their defensive backfield, you were profoundly mistaken. For the first time in 22 years, the Eagles drafted a cornerback in the first round and the man in question, Quinyon Mitchell, is a dandy and worthy of the 10th overall pick. But Philly went back to the well and snagged Iowa's Cooper DeJean as the third-ranked cornerback, early in the second round.

Should these rookies play to their potential, Philadelphia will be a Super Bowl contender because this already-premier offense added a steamroller in the backfield with Saquon Barkley now plying his trade in the City of Brotherly Love.

Best Bet: Over 10 ½ (-115) Regular Season Wins & Division Champion (-105)

Dallas Cowboys

It was an excruciating 48-32 loss in the first round of last year's postseason that Cowboys fans have had to carry throughout the offseason. Yet, it is important to remember this team won a dozen games and the division in 2023.

Cee Dee Lamb is the marquee receiver on this team but there isn't much of a supporting cast for Dak Prescott to target. Sure, Brandin Cooks is a serviceable No. 2 man but he will be 31 and we don't see a big season for him.

Best Bets: Under 10 (-115) Regular Season Wins

New York Giants

Will the real Daniel Jones please stand up? It's tough to know what the Giants will get with the mercurial young quarterback as some days he looks like a gritty version of Eli Manning while at other times he resembles Jake Fromm.

After an injury-shortened 2023 campaign, Jones will get another bite at the apple, only this time around he will have the luxury of a true burner after the team drafted LSU's Malik Neighbors as the sixth overall pick.

Best Bet: Under 6 ½ (U-145) Regular Season Wins

Washington Commanders

The Commanders knew their season was over when they traded two of their best defensive players, Chase Young and Montez Sweat, in the middle of the season. Those are voids that will be tough to replace but Washington did draft two promising rookies in the second round when they selected Illinois defensive tackle Jer'Zhan Newton and Michigan cornerback Mike Sainristil.

Best Bet: Under 6 ½ (+100) Regular Season Wins

NFC West Division Preview

San Francisco 49ers

If Christian McCaffrey remains healthy, as he did last year, and Brandon Aiyuk gets the contract extension he covets then the 49ers will be the best in the West yet again. In fact, they might even be better this year than last when they fell to the Chiefs in the Super Bowl.

We make this bold proclamation because the Niners bolstered their defense despite the departures of Chase Young and Arik Armstead. The 49ers upped their defensive game by signing the ferocious Leonard Floyd who had 10 ½ sacks last year with the Bills while bringing in Maliek Collins, Yetur Gross-Matos, and De'Vondre Campbell for good measure.

Seattle Seahawks

The Pete Carroll era is over in Seattle and the debut of former Ravens' defensive coordinator, Mike Macdonald, as head coach is merely weeks away. Change can be good but Carroll was such a fixture that those who are returning may find the new regime challenging.

Geno Smith has had two good seasons in a row but he is by no means an elite quarterback. However, he is surrounded by major-league talent in D.K. Metcalf, Tyler Lockett, and Kenneth Walker while last year's first-rounder, Jaxon Smith-Njigba, had a solid rookie campaign. Yet, the offensive line is suspect and the defense is a considerable liability.

Best Bet: Under 7 ½ (+100) Regular Season Wins

Los Angeles Rams

The Rams struck gold last season with a fifth-round rookie in wideout Puka Nacua and a second-year man, running back Kyren Williams, who was given the starting job and never looked back with 1,144 rushing yards and a dozen touchdowns. This year we can add to the mix a healthy Cooper Kupp and Matthew Stafford to begin the season.

Unfortunately for the Rams, Aaron Donald retired which created an enormous void incapable of being filled. But the Rams' management decided to reinforce all aspects of its defense which included spending their first and second-round selections on a pair of Florida State defensive linemen in Jared Verse and Braden Fiske.

Best Bet: Over 8 ½ (0-145) Regular Season Wins

Arizona Cardinals

Kyler Murray was hurt for the majority of last season but he is reportedly healthy for the beginning of this campaign. He also has what should be a dynamic weapon in this year's fourth-overall pick, Marvin Harrison Jr, while James Connor is solid in the backfield.

But what if Harrison isn't the second coming of Larry Fitzgerald? This is not a gifted group of skill position players with the exception of Murray. The offensive line is middling at best while the defensive front is severely lacking. Hopefully, Arizona's second pick in the first round (No. 27), defensive end Darius Robinson, will help bring the heat to that woeful D-line.

Best Bet: Under 6 ½ (U+135) Regular Season Wins

NFC South Division Preview

New Orleans Saints

It doesn't matter how good a team's quarterback is if they are constantly throwing under pressure which is how we envision Derek Carr's 2024 season unfolding. Carr did a solid job last year, connecting on over 68% of his passes and tossing for 3,878 yards with 25 touchdowns and 8 picks.

But this season could be a different story as the team's top blocker, right guard Ryan Ramczyk, is likely out for the year with a devastating knee injury. After him, there's just not much there which is why New Orleans drafted tackle Taliese Fuaga out of Oregon State.

Best Bets: Under 7 ½ (-120) Regular Season Wins

Atlanta Falcons

Arthur Smith is gone and Raheem Morris has arrived, again, after serving as the team's interim head coach in 2020 before spending the next three seasons as the Rams' defensive coordinator. And in another bold addition to the roster, the Falcons locked up Kirk Cousins for the next four years to be the man under center at a cost of $180 million.

Yet, the Falcons drafted Washington quarterback Michael Penix Jr. with the eighth overall pick. Head-scratching to be sure considering this team was desperate for an elite pass rusher, among other things. It's a golden opportunity for Penix to learn for at least a season instead of the usual baptism by fire that ruins so many young quarterbacks.

Carolina Panthers

We weren't the only ones who winced when the Panthers selected Bryce Young as the No. 1 overall pick last year but now we have plenty of company after Young's hellacious rookie campaign. Naturally, there was more than enough blame to go around but now the Panthers have to deal with the "damaged goods" syndrome that has plagued the Jets in their ill-advised decisions to toss highly-touted rookie QBs to the lions.

Best Bet: Over 7 ½ (0-130) Regular Season Wins

Tampa Bay Bucs

The Bucs kept the tandem of Baker Mayfield and Mike Evans together by signing both in the offseason which is good news for their fans. Chris Godwin is also under contract so the holy trinity of the Tampa Bay offense is intact and will be bolstered by a stout offensive line which now includes Duke guard Graham Barton, selected in the opening round.

Safety Antonie Winfield is the straw that stirs the drink on Tampa's defense and reacquiring Jordan Whitehead to play across from him gives the Bucs a terrific safety tandem. But that's pretty much where the optimism ends on defense as the defensive line is middling at best.

Best Bet: Over 7 ½ (-145) Regular Season Wins & Division Winner (+300)

NFC North Division Preview

Detroit Lions

There were signs in 2022 that this team was one to watch and last year the Lions proved they were indeed a rising power when they ended with a 12-5 record and nearly made it to the Super Bowl. However, lack of maturity proved fatal as Detroit watched a 17-point lead over the 49ers in the conference championship game melt like butter in a blast furnace.

Anything short of a Super Bowl appearance this season will be viewed as a letdown in Motown. The Lions' first two picks in the 2023 NFL Draft, running back Jahmyr Gibbs (No. 12) and tight end Sam LaPorta (No. 34), were home run selections as both wound up in the Pro Bowl.

Best Bets: Over 10 ½ (U-120) Regular Season Wins & Division Winner (+150)

Minnesota Vikings

Kirk Cousins is no longer the man with the plan in Minnesota which means the Vikings will rely on Sam Darnold to serve as the mentor to first-round pick J.J. McCarthy who is coming off a college national championship with Michigan. If Minnesota decides to ease McCarthy into his role under center, Sam Darnold will get the opportunity to work behind a line that will actually protect him.

Minnesota has the best receiver in the game in Justin Jefferson and a stellar No. 2 target in Jordan Addison. Add to that a talented tight end in T.J. Hockenson and newly-signed Aaron Jones who will give the Vikings a bolt of lightning out of the backfield.

Best Bet: Over 7 (-115) Regular Season Wins

Chicago Bears

The Bears should do the smart thing and sit the No. 1 overall pick in the 2024 NFL Draft, Caleb Williams, but they won't. Fortunately, Williams will have decent protection in front of him and an embarrassment of riches around him including DJ Moore, Keenan Allen, and first-round selection Rome Odunze. Chicago will also have the luxury of silky-smooth tailback and former Detroit Lion, D'Andre Swift, keeping defenses honest.

Best Bet: Over 8 ½ (O-165) Regular Season Wins

Green Bay Packers

Jordan Love finally got his opportunity to shine last season and shine he did by passing for over 4,100 yards with 32 touchdowns and 11 picks. One major reason for optimism is that Love and his coterie of young receivers will all have a full year of NFL football experience under their collective belts. Meanwhile, Josh Jacobs will bring his veteran presence to the offense after the Packers signed him away from the Raiders.

Best Bet: Under 9 ½ (U+110) Regular Season Wins
